

Rear Shock Absorbers

Each rear shock absorber (1) has five adjustment positions for different types of road or riding conditions.

Position I is for light loads and smooth road conditions. Positions II to V progressively increase spring tension for a stiffer rear suspension, and are used when the motorcycle is more heavily laden or operated on rough roads. Adjustment can be made with the pin spanner (2).

